

Legacy Giving – Leaving a Charitable Gift in your Will

Thank you for considering a contribution to Turf Research Canada through ‘Legacy Giving’. Leaving a charitable gift can be as simple as adding a clause to your Will and there are several options for you to consider when it comes to giving.

The most common form of legacy gift involves donating a specified dollar amount, a residual amount or a specified percentage of your estate as outlined in your Will. Other possibilities include gifts of property, securities, life insurance, RRIFs, trusts and so on.

It’s best to consult your legal/financial advisors for further direction and there is some great information at www.willpower.ca that says:

“Wills aren’t just a legal way to distribute your personal assets, they can be a powerful tool for change in the world. Adding a charitable gift to your Will is easier than you think.”
